

MEDICATION VS. HOME CARE FOR HORMONE BALANCE

Lupron has been shown to be effective for quick stabilization for conditions like chronic egg laying.

Lupron is tolerated well in most cases.

Short-term results in many cases. Vets still recommend home remedies be used in conjunction with meds.

Doesn't address the root cause of chronic hormones.

Medical procedures are expensive and can be invasive.

There doesn't appear to be a standard recommended dosage.

Excellent long-term results for many species

Addresses the root cause of the problem (photoperiod, nesting opportunities, mate-like interactions).

More natural for your exotic pet.

Care-takers worry and feel sad when they learn that they can't be "lovey-dovey" with their pet.

This method requires that the care-taker reinforces natural parrot behaviors.