Les Trois Amis by Jennifer Degenhardt

Three teens: one girl, two boys. Two friends to start. Then three. Then two. As if teenage friendships aren't hard enough... Marissa and Jack have been best friends for as long as they can remember, only having troubles when Jack wasn't always honest about himself. Despite their differences, however, their friendship endures. But that friendship is challenged when a new student, Julien, moves to town and upsets the longstanding dynamic between Marissa and Jack. Through an uncomplicated plot learn how the teens navigate some fairly complex

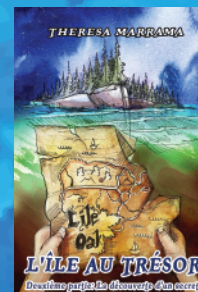

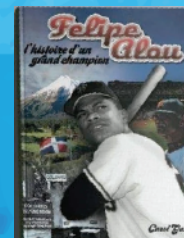

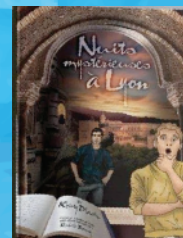

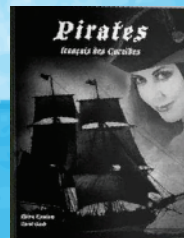

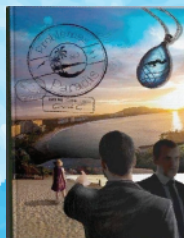

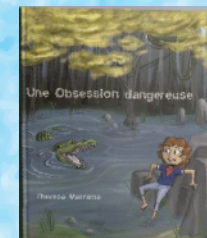

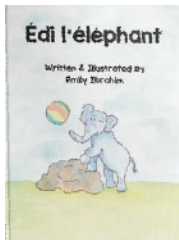

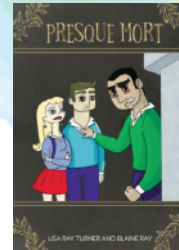

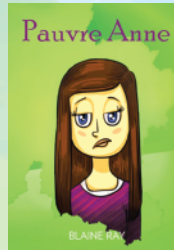

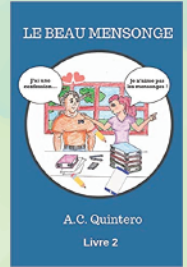

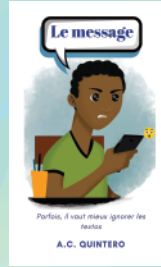

French books

Juliana by Margarita Pérez García & Rosana Navarro

An easy French reader for language learners with less than 130 word families plus a few that are similar in both French and English. Juliana is special – a rare albino bat who lives with her brother in a secret cave in Spain. But Juliana is unhappy. She doesn't seem to fit with her bat colony. Not only does she look different but she does everything differently. Far-fetched plans and crazy ideas, that's her! One day, she feels a strange vibration coming from outside the cave. What is it? She senses danger but no one will listen. Juliana sets off to investigate and is drawn into an adventure that takes her far beyond the safety of her cave. Will she survive? Can she use her special abilities to save her colony from destruction?
