What to do when all the creams in the world aren't enough to conquer winter's all-too-common cracked and chapped complexions? Before calling it a lost cause, consider the wide-ranging healing benefits of salve. After all, there's a reason that, decades after their launch, formulas like Egyptian Magic and Lucas' Papaw still line the shelves of women the world round.

And now, the category is receiving a 21st-century upgrade thanks to novel blends such as 8 Faces' CAP-approved Boundless Solid Oil, which comes packed with antioxidant-rich amla berry and softening oils like tangerine, evening primrose, and baobab seed. Slather Make Beauty's restorative marine-algae balm across lips and limbs alike, or toss Earth Tu Face's geranium-and-vetiver-scented beeswax stick into carryalls for an on-the-go hydration boost. Best of all? These products don't have to be relegated to the back of your medicine cabinet once temperatures start to rise. Just take it from chef-turned-moisture-maven Lauren Willson, whose organic ointment, called Lauren's All-Purpose Salve, works just as well on windburn as sunburns. As she says, when it comes to salves, "the possibilities are endless!" Above, nine year-round fix-alls to invest in for better skin now and later.
