

These Self-Adjusting Makeup Shades Are Better Than a Mood Ring

APRIL 6, 2016 3:42 PM
by ARDEN FANNING

2 / 8

Make Universal Stick, $24

Buy it now

As aura readings (and their accompanying rainbow-haloed photographs) become cultish party activities, and mood rings by Eddie Borgo and Pamela Love assume a treasured place in our collective jewelry boxes, we can't help but notice that our favorite beauty staples are also right on trend in custom-matching our personalities (and complexions) as of late.

Using self-adjusting pigments that respond to your unique skin tone, this new wave of products takes the guesswork out of finding your perfect shade. From Make Beauty's new Universal Stick, which tints cheeks in a healthy just-ran-a-mile sheer flush, to MoodMatcher's Split Stick Lip Colors, which come in graphic color-blocked hues that shade shift to match your body temperature (like a sky blue dash of color that morphs into the perfect fuchsia lip stain on contact), they deliver a spirit-lifting boost that can rival your morning coffee.

Above, seven products to personalize your beauty routine with this season.

Direct Link: <http://www.vogue.com/13423629/ph-adjusting-makeup-customized-shade-dior-glow-smashbox-givenchy/>