TIPS FOR YOUR DOG...FROM LUKE

• I like to take breaks at least every hour. And not just bathroom breaks either, but stretching, walking and, most important, sniffing breaks, too. I like to catch up on who's been walking around the neighborhood.

• Now with my Pup To Go I get to check out some of the most popular – and crowded – places: Times Square, flea markets, Bergdorf's on a Saturday. I really love all the action and excitement, it's all so new to me. But other dogs might not like crowds. In new situations, stay in tune to how secure your dog is feeling.

• You'll love the extra attention and head rubs you'll get while going around in your Pup To Go. But there are sacrifices, too. Like always having to look your cutest since you'll be meeting so many new people -- face to face. There's no more going out with bed head when you're five feet off the ground.

• Don't be fooled by dogs who drink from puddles, they are just curious about their reflection..."who is that dog that looks just like me"? When dogs are thirsty there's nothing we like more than clean, fresh water. Please make sure you either bring or have access to plenty of fresh water for your dog. Hint: I have become friends with a lot of people who own delis and restaurants in the neighborhood (you probably will too) and they always good for a drink if I need one.

SAFETY TIPS FOR YOU...FROM MEENA & CIE

• Pup To Go is not meant to replace walking and exercising your dog. All dogs need exercise and plenty of it.

• Pup To Go is intended for short-term use only. Please make sure your dog walks and stretches at least once every hour.

• Do not use the Pup To Go legs out front carrier with dogs that weigh over 25 lbs.

• As with any new activity that requires physical exertion, you should first consult your physician. And don't forget to bend those knees! Bend at the knees, not at the waist.

• Do not carry a child, a cat or any other animal besides a dog in your Pup To Go.

• You should never jog, run, play sports or engage in any other strenuous activity while wearing an occupied Pup To Go. Also, it is not safe to drive a vehicle or ride a bike while wearing your Pup To Go.

* Do not carry sharp objects or hot beverages/food while carrying your dog in your Pup To Go.
