SHOWROOM SCENE

TAYLOR MADE

A bold new interiors brand lands in Atlanta with the arrival of Taylor Made Home at ADAC.

By Caroline Cox

As the design dynamo behind Charleston, S.C.-based Taylor Burke Home, Julianne Taylor has developed a fevered following for her cheerful interior accents. The buzzy brand has expanded to Atlanta, with its first permanent showroom opening this fall in a 1,350-square-foot Atlanta Decorative Arts Center space. This stylish showroom stocks all you need for bold interiors: Think rich, bright jewel tones, vintage inspiration galore, and myriad unique furnishings and accessories (from geometric bar stools and antler-accented trays to geode-based lamps and animal-print ottomans). Taylor has found inspiration for her wares through trekking the globe—anticipate beards such as Addison Weeks, Times Two Design, Mitchell Black and Atlanta-based Lacefield Designs (which conceived an exclusive collection of pillows just for the brand). Keep an eye out for Taylor's new name, designer, to be released in the coming months. ADAC, 351 Peachtree Hills Ave. NE, Ste. 502, 800.860.5821, taylorburkehome.com

BURNING QUESTION

GLITZ, GLAMOUR & GIVING

We polled Atlanta's philanthropic powerhouses and social scenesters as to which glam galas they are most looking forward to this season. —PW

"I am most excited about Afternoon in the Country (Nov. 8 at Serenbe) benefitting Dames d'Escoffier International." —Pano I. Karatassos, executive chef, Kyma, buckheadrestaurants.com/kyma

"Of course I always look forward to A Meal to Remember (Nov. 6) and Starfish Ball (Jan. 23). But this year the amazing Shan Cooper and I were greatly humbled to have been asked to serve as honorary co-chairs of the Mayor's Masked Ball (Dec. 19). The work of the United Negro College Fund is essential to the fabric of our country." —D. Jack Sawyer Jr., president of southeast region, Wilmington Trust, wilmingtontrust.com

"I can't wait for A Meal to Remember (Nov. 6). It is a great cause and my friend Marsha Middleton is chairing, so I know it will be an amazing event!" —Alex Delotch Davis, public relations manager, Bloomingdale's, bloomingdales.com
