HOW TO SMOOTH OUT A WRINKLED FELT PUTTING GREEN

Sometimes the felt putting surface can get a little wrinkled. This happens after it's been stored for a long time, or sometimes it may arrive with some wrinkles from shipping. The most common solution is to use an iron to quickly work out the wrinkles.

How? Set set your iron to the lowest temperature to gently work out the wrinkles - this can be done by draping the putting green over an ironing board or done on the floor. If you choose the floor you will want to put something under the putting green to protect the floor. Usually a towel will do the trick. Now, gently work out the wrinkles. If the lower temperature isn't working, slowly increase the temperature until the felt putting surface is flat.
