
Roll your clay into sheets on the thickest setting of your pasta machine. Spritz water on the texture sheet and press firmly into each sheet of clay. Cut out one of each diamond and attach your ribbon clamps. Carefully compress the ribbon clamp into the clay and ensure good closure on both sides of the pendant. Bake your pieces according to the manufacturer’s instructions and allow to cool. Apply Magic Gloss and cure for 5 minutes.

Supplies you will need for the necklace: Beading Wire, pliers, flush cutters, 4 crimp beads, jump rings. 20 gauge silver wire to create connections for the pendants. Assortment of beads varying in size, a toggle clasp and two lobster clasps. Connect the diamond pendants together. Determine the length of the necklace you want. I determine the length of beading wire by placing the beading wire around my neck and holding where I would like my pendants to sit. Once you have the length cut the strand in half with a flush cutter and attach a crimp bead on one end of each strand.
Arrange your beads in a pattern to your liking. Make sure you have enough to repeat on the other strand. Finish the remaining wire with smaller beads and attach the crimp bead and toggle clasp.

I decided to attach lobster clasps at the end of both strands. I made more pendants with the scrap clays all mixed and rolled out together. Cutters are available @ojoycreations. I really enjoyed this project and I love the idea of interchangeable pendants. Happy claying!
