

BIGLIFE SOLAR ECLIPSE PICNIC LIST:

BAXTER & JACKSON LINENS

Backyard or backcountry—set your table or picnic blanket with Baxter & Jackson's pretty patterned linens. Ketchum, Idaho-based artist Kathryn McNeal started out as a landscape painter and found her heart jumped with textiles. ## SPRUCE IT UP DEODORANT

Whether you're hucking it to that viewing site or camping overnight, rest assured that when you're pointing to the sun (or raising your binocs) you'll smell fine with Spruce Naturals. Spruce uses only safe, non-toxic bacteria-fighting coconut oil, shea, baking soda, and essential oils because what you put on your body is just as important as what you put in it. In lavender, lemongrass and pine, or unscented, this stick really works. $9.99, sprucemeup.com

CORKCICLE WINE THERMOS

"Ditch the Cooler. Keep the Cool." The Canteen from Corkcicle keeps any beverage cold for 25 hours! This beautiful triple-insulated stainless steel canteen comes in multiple sizes and colors, three finish collections (say yes to Gloss) and a wide mouth for ice cubes. A bottle of wine fits in the 25oz. Fill 'er up! $32.95, corkcicle.com

PETERBORO CLASSIC PICNIC BASKET

Sometimes you just want a traditional basket for that sweet walk to the picnic spot or eclipse site. Handcrafted from Appalachian White Ash, it holds lunch or dinner for four. The durable gingham vinyl liner is available in three colors and the wood in four stain options. It'll last for years, so you can pass it on to the next eclipse chaser. 18"L x 12"W x 10"H. $70, peterborobasket.com
