

SPORTSHEETS[®]

KEEPING COUPLES CONNECTED™

HERE'S A QUICK, SEXY IN-BED DEMO YOU CAN TRY WITH YOUR PARTNER:

Lying on your back, knees up, feet on the bed, take note of the position of your hips and the angle of your vagina. Next, lift your legs straight up in the air. Compare the new angle of your vagina to the previous one. You should feel a big change. When you try this with your partner inside you, you will both experience the new sensation. You've just rotated your hips about 90 degrees. You've also changed the angle of your vaginal canal the same amount. If you're flexible enough, continue raising your legs until your feet are close to your head. The angle of your vaginal canal has just rotated 180 degrees. If you want better sex, rotate your hips!

FEATURES:

- In the missionary position, these ankle cuffs allow women to hold their legs up around their partner's back without muscle fatigue
- Tilts the hips and changes the angle of the vaginal canal
- Deeper penetration

RR4698MB

NEW POSITIONS

Well, the world's most popular position just got more comfortable! Use Sportsheets® G-Spot Link™, fastening a cuff around each ankle with the strap toward the inside of your ankles. Lie back, and wrap your legs around your partner's back. Your partner, on top of you and bent slightly forward, can reach behind his back and connect the cuffs together. They are instantly adjustable with one hand, and can be tightened to provide maximum comfort and position for your legs.

You can now relax your legs and let them “hang” on your partner's back. This lets you concentrate on your pleasure. No more locking your ankles together and struggling to hold your legs up around his back.

With your feet up off the bed and your legs around his back, your hips naturally tilt to a new position. If you were to move your legs so that your feet are near your head, your hips would rotate or tilt almost 180 degrees. When your hips tilt, the angle of pelvis tilts (or changes) with it. Your vagina tilts with your hips and the angle of your vaginal canal changes relative to your partner's penis. This creates different pressures on his penis than he's used to. You'll feel these pressure changes too. This change in angles makes your intercourse feel different. When your sex feels different, you feel amazing!

THE “WINDSHIELD WIPER”

The G-Spot Link™ can also be used like a sexual steering wheel. Lay on your back with the cuffs fastened together and adjusted to their closest setting. Lift your legs straight up in the air. With your partner on his knees and his penis inside you, have him grasp the material or buckle between your ankles with his hand. Have him slowly rotate your legs from left to right (like a windshield wiper), and back & forth.

When he pushes your legs toward your head, his penis will hit your G spot every time he thrusts into you. The other benefit is that he has one hand free to caress, tickle or tease you wherever you like.

Windshield Wiper Technique: use the strap to rotate a woman's legs from side to side