It's a Spring Thing

Simone Rocha x H&M blouse ($70), pants ($119), and dress ($249). On model: dress ($199), headband ($60), and earrings ($40); hm.com.

120% Lino x Rosantica bag, $225-$275; 120percento.com.

Runway Refresh

Fans of Simone Rocha's ethereal-cum-edgy work will delight in her H&M collaboration, which nods to some of the Irish-Chinese designer's most memorable shows of the past decade. "I wanted to reimagine details from my archives rather than do mere re-editions," Rocha says. "I've reinterpreted things for now."

Carried Away

Linen-centric brand 120% Lino introduces just the right complements to its diaphanous designs: a selection of breezy summer purses made in partnership with accessories go-to Rosantica.

1001 Stories shoes, $325; 1001stories.com.

On model: Merlette blouse ($380) and skirt ($280). Bags, from left: $480, $460, and $560, made from Oeko-Tex; merlettenyc.com.

Grip Service

With a focus on woven and hand-sewn textures, Merlette's debut range of handbags embodies the label's elegant ethos.

Step Up

For every sale of these joy-inducing rainbow flats—which are a special edition from socially active shoe company 1001 Stories—10 percent of proceeds will benefit the Make-a-Wish foundation.

Still Here jumpsuit (100% recycled cotton), $365; stillhere.nyc.

One and Done

Finding the perfect boilersuit is no easy feat. But upcycled-denim line Still Here's fresh spin on the style checks all the right boxes: eco-conscious materials, a sleek-yet-slouchy fit, and bespoke embroidered details.
