LightwaveRF launch Google Assistant voice control for Google Home

LightwaveRF plc ("LightwaveRF" or the "Company"), the leading smart home solutions provider for the remote control and monitoring of light, heat, power and security through a wide range of devices via just one app, is pleased to announce the launch of Google Assistant voice control for Google Home across the LightwaveRF product range.

Since the launch of the Google Home hands-free smart speaker in the UK last month, LightwaveRF has been working closely with Google to achieve Google Assistant voice control for the LightwaveRF product range. This has been achieved and launched to the LightwaveRF user base today as well as being featured at Google I/O, the annual worldwide developer festival being held this week in Mountain View, California.

Commenting, Andrew Pearson, CEO said: "We are continuing to invest in building our cloud platform and our innovative approach allows us to quickly integrate with major connected home brands and devices to achieve high quality results. Voice control is now widely accepted as a key enabler for smart home solutions and drives both new customer acquisition and new device sales to existing customers for the Company. The expansion of LightwaveRF's voice control through this addition greatly improves the user experience for Google and LightwaveRF customers. It is a testament to the quality of our technology that LightwaveRF is amongst the launch group of smart home partners for Google Home."
