Emser Tile Expands, Adds New Career Opportunities in Houston

New 600,000-square-foot regional distribution center brings dozens of job openings to the area

HOUSTON – On the heels of immense growth in the central U.S., the leading designer, marketer and producer of the world’s finest tile and natural stone, Emser Tile, announced its new Central Distribution Center in Houston, Texas. Located in Pinto Business Park, the state-of-the-art facility is a relocated expansion, nearly doubling the size of the company’s previous location originally built in 2004, and will employ more than 120 associates.

With strong roots in the community throughout the last 15 years, Emser Tile has five sales and service locations in the city, including four local branches and one distribution center. The company plans to relocate current distribution associates to the new facility, and is looking to hire more than 20 new associates in positions ranging from entry-level to management.

Scheduled to open in June, Emser Tile’s latest and largest distribution center will increase support for the company’s sales and service locations throughout the central U.S., streamlining stocking and shipping for the company’s expanding product portfolio. The modern facility, incorporating best design practices for health and wellness, features tall ceilings, well-lit work areas, enhanced ventilation with 20-foot fans, and a multi-purpose break room and training area.

“We are thrilled our expanded Central Distribution Center will bring dozens of new jobs to the Houston community,” shared Erika Croy, vice president of human relations for Emser Tile. “Our long-term commitment to creating a great place to work is exemplified in our current associates, and we encourage interested candidates to explore opportunities with Emser.”

The company currently operates 74 sales and service locations nationwide. In addition to its Houston facility, Emser operates distribution centers in California, Virginia and Florida.

Celebrating its 50th anniversary this year, Emser Tile is a family-owned company that places high value on creating opportunity for its associates through supporting their growth. Interested applicants of all experience levels may apply on the Emser.com careers page.
