6 Advantages of Inflatable Kayaks versus Traditional Kayaks

Are you looking for an activity that can get you outdoors more often? Do you enjoy getting out on the water to escape the hustle and grind of everyday life? If so, then you should consider purchasing inflatable kayaks for you and your family or friends to enjoy.

Doing so will help you enjoy an outing on the water whenever you feel like it. Inflatable kayaks are budget-friendly and offer a way to enjoy nature by cruising on the water at your own pace. No matter if you are looking for a relaxing afternoon paddle around a pond or a challenging whitewater kayaking adventure, there is an inflatable kayak that will exceed your expectations.

Be sure to see below to learn more about the advantages that you'll unlock by purchasing inflatable kayaks for your enjoyment.

1. Lightweight

Ask any experienced kayaker what part they dread most about taking their traditional kayak out on the water and they'll all tell you the same thing: carrying it to and from the water to car and again from car to storage. Storage and transportation are 2 more things that are much easier to do with an inflatable kayak.

While kayaks made of wood or polyethylene are common, they aren't efficient for those of you looking to make a quick and easy trip to the water. You'll spend more time and energy carrying them from your car or truck to the water, and vice versa.

Inflatable kayaks, inflatable paddle boards, and inflatable boats are becoming more and more popular due to their efficiency. Their lightweight design makes it not only easy for you to carry them to the water, they are also easier to pack into your car. You won't need a trailer or roof rack for these kayaks, they will easily pack into your backseat! If you have young children who need assistance with their kayak, you can carry multiple inflatable kayaks at once.

Inflatable kayaks offer the lightweight material you need with all of the amenities. Durability is not sacrificed in the slightest, quality inflatable kayaks feature some of the toughest, most reliable, and durable material in the world. They can glide through wind and waves with ease, offering a smooth, sturdy, and calming experience every time.

2. Affordable Price

The price that you can expect to pay for your kayak will depend on a variety of different factors. That includes size, number of passengers, material, brand, style, types of kayaks, and amenities (such as back support).

If you purchase a kayak that's made out of wood or polyethylene, then you can expect to pay anywhere between $2,000 to $5,000. That's not an efficient price for those of you wanting to buy kayaks for the entire family.

If you choose to purchase an inflatable kayak, then you'll be saving enough to buy one for the entire family. For those of you that are only looking to purchase one, there are many 1-person inflatable kayaks for less than $500.

Be sure to keep an open mind while you scan around the market for the right inflatable kayak. Due to their durability, inflatable kayaks offer a high return on investment for their owners. You'll get all the benefits at half the price!

3. Easy to Store

Any experienced kayak owner will tell you that it can be a pain finding a safe place to store their wood or polyethylene kayaks when they're not in use. Since they don't offer any give, you have to find somewhere to store them as is. However, their bulky build and awkward shape make that nearly impossible to do. In fact, most kayak owners are forced to rent out a storage unit just so they can safely store their kayaks when they aren't in use.

This will never be a concern if you were to purchase an inflatable or folding kayak. You can easily condense them after each use and store them in your car, garage, boathouse, shed, under your couch, or anywhere else that's more convenient.

4. Durability

When many people hear the term "inflatable kayak", they generally envision a kayak that's made of a fragile rubber material that's as delicate as an air balloon. That couldn't be further from the truth.

Most inflatable kayaks contain a fabric inside to give it the flexibility to inflate while making it as durable as possible. Then, there's a rubber outside layer that protects the inside from sticks, trunks, hooks, and other sharp things out on the water.

They're made to last through freshwater or saltwater and can be used on flat bodies of water, or ones with choppy waves, such as the ocean.

You can get many years of use out of an inflatable kayak, no matter if you use it for exercising, kayak fishing, or slowly strolling along the water at your own pace.

5. Easy to Control

Generally speaking, you might find some kayaks to be hard to steer. If you use a wood kayak, you may have a harder time trying to turn and navigate in some conditions.

This can make it extremely difficult to go through narrow rivers that have a significant amount of branches, trunks, and rocks jutting out from the water.

Since inflatable kayaks are made of a lighter material, you'll find them much easier to turn on a dime. You will also find a variety of inflatable kayaks to meet any of your needs, no matter if you are looking for an easy touring inflatable kayak or an inflatable whitewater kayak. Having a great selection to choose from will further aid you in choosing the right inflatable kayak for you. Choosing the right inflatable kayak will also mean a kayak that is easiest to control; which will make your adventures easier and more enjoyable.

6. Pain-Free Transit

Most people that want to kayak on the open water don't have a car that's readily equipped for transporting kayaks from their house to the water. Even if you have a truck with a sizeable truck bed, you'll find a 10-foot-long kayak to be difficult to keep secured while you drive to and from.

With inflatable kayaks, you can safely and easily store them inside the car, regardless of what car model that you drive. Once you arrive, you bring them out, quickly inflate them up, and carry them to the water with ease.

No more struggling to fasten them in before you take off. No more driving 40 mph on the highway to ensure they don't fall off as you drive. You can literally take inflatable kayaks anywhere with ease!
