✓ Why Have a Floating
Pond Fountain?

Fountains have been around for centuries, with the earliest known fountains dating back to 2000 BC.

The ancient Romans were the first to have upright free-standing fountains with water flowing up from underground lead pipes.

With modern advances and contemporary designs, today's pond fountains are a great addition to any residential or commercial outdoor water space.

Whether you have a water garden big enough, a pond or lake on your property, are in charge of a massive condominium complex, or have an outdoor resort with a lake or large pond; a pond fountain is an ideal addition.

Why Have a Floating Pond Fountain?

A pond fountain not only enhances the look of the outdoor space, but it oxygenates the water and helps keep it clean to eliminate pests such as mosquitos, slugs, algae, and general muck.

By eliminating the toxins and creating a healthier pond you will also notice the benefit of removing bad odors, adding to your enjoyment.

If you live in a humid area that has issues with insects, a floating pond fountain helps to keep the water moving which makes the area less attractive to these pests, such as mosquitoes.

It also becomes an area that they are no longer interested in nesting which will greatly reduce the population around your pond or lake.

Another benefit of floating pond fountains is the minimizing of water pollution and stagnation.

Stagnation occurs when different levels of your pond are separated by temperature.

Stagnation causes toxins to form and reduces the amount of oxygen in the water, making it less viable for fish and other aquatic creatures.
