

OFF THE BEATEN TRACK (4.0 HOURS)

To experience something other than cosmopolitan in Singapore, try venturing out to the rural suburbs. As you explore the different facets of the hinterland, you'll gradually find yourself immersed in a world of your own.

Trek through the rainforest

Lined with old rubber trees and surrounded by lush vegetation, the MacRitchie Nature Trail provides an amazing botanical feast for nature lovers everywhere.

The MacRitchie Reservoir was constructed in 1867, and currently has boardwalks skirting the edge and walking trails through the forest. They range in distances from 3 km to 11 km.

HSBC Tree-Top Walk, a 250-metre aerial free standing suspension bridge spanning Bukit Peirce and Bukit Kallang, which are the two highest points in MacRitchie. You can enjoy a pleasant stroll around its banks or make the most of the jogging path and outdoor fitness stations.

Discover the natural beauty of Singapore's wetlands

Sprawled over 87 hectares of wetland and located in the north west of Singapore, the Sungei Buloh Wetland Reserve is also home to a wide variety of wildlife and lush flora and fauna.

Observe crabs, mudskippers and mud lobsters in their natural habitats, or a bird's eye view of birds and animals, view them at a distance through observation hides that are dotted throughout the tranquil park.

The Sungei Buloh Wetland Reserve is a unique and world-class eco-tourism experience, and is a sustainable, distinctive centre for wetland conservation, biodiversity and education.
