Also inside: Three stunning bedroom schemes with added flower power, plus shop for laundry baskets, dressing tables, kitchen tiles and baths

Left: Annick bought the bench in a Camden antique shop when the couple first moved in. She chose the cross-legged table as it's more comfortable for those sitting on the bench. The 102 stool and the cushions are from Annick's collections at Alp Design. The three-dimensional letters were found in Spitalfields market and represent the family's initials.

Below: The open shelves are an attractive feature where Annick can store the pretty vintage crockery she inherited from her grandparents and other accessories she has collected. The lining behind the shelves is a decorative wallpaper, which makes for an interesting splash of colour.
