

Pillow Tutorial

Step 1: Make two small donut shape footprints a little inside the width of the mold.

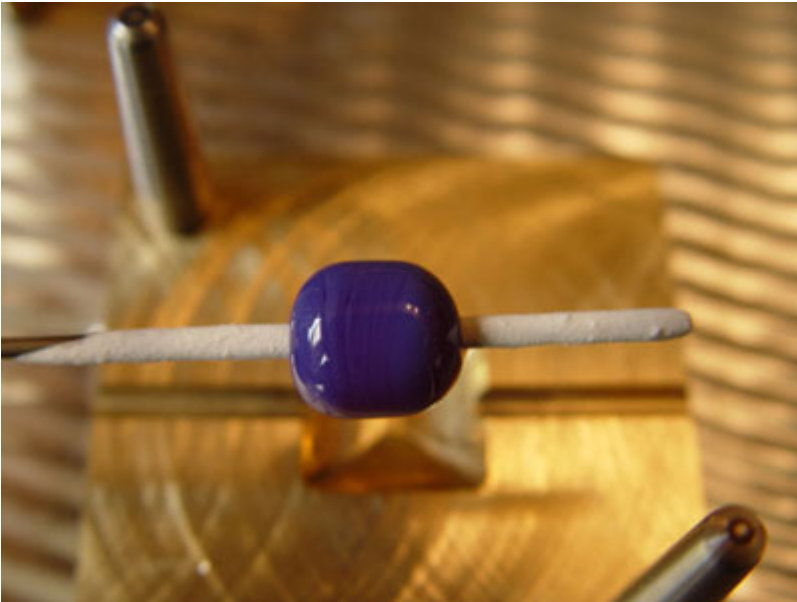

Step 2: Add glass to the center until it is a little narrower than the mold is tall.

Step 3: Melt glass into a round bead.

Step 4: Gently marver the fattest part of the round bead. This can be done with any marvering tool, or right on the corner of your new brass ZooziiPress. This gives the glass the basic desire to move into the corners of the press.

Step 5: Now you are ready to heat that squatty tube to the point that it is pliable, but not so that you lose the basic shape. Then press. This is what it will look like when you remove it from the press.

Step 6: Now Fire Polish to desired appearance. The more you fire polish the more rounded the corners will become and the smoother the surface will become. If you want to sharpen the corners again, or if you desire to have the facets be more defined, simply heat and press again. When you press the second time the cool ridges are not as deep, so it is easier to fire polish without losing the shape.
