New Tatter-a-fact® Episode!

Episode #36: OMG® Cartridge Needles, a Girlz Ink x TATSoul Collaboration

On this new episode of Tatter-a-fact® I go into detail about the OMG® Cartridge Needle series, a collaboration between Girlz Ink and TATSoul. Huge shoutout to Billy Chen at TATSoul for giving me this opportunity and believing in me and these needles, this collaboration wouldn't be possible without you!

These are topics we talk about:

TATT TIP

Remove that apron 🙋 not 🙅

When removing your disposable apron...be sure to pull and remove it downwards by your waist. Never pull it up over your face.

This is really important. Our disposable apron is worn to keep our clothes from getting contaminated with client body fluids. Always assume client body fluid did get on your apron.

The last thing you want to do is pull that apron up and over your face. You want to keep that apron as far from your face as possible.

Break the ties of your apron and work the apron down to your waist area and remove.

Work clean. Stay safe. Happy tattooing, everybody!

GRAY VANISH VS UN-GREY

Gray Vanish vs Un-Grey

Do you know what makes Gray Vanish and Un-Grey different? Do you know when to use each? With similar names and both being modifiers, these correctors can get confusing for some artists.

Gray Vanish is an inorganic Warm, Yellow-Orange based modifier. If you're working on slightly to moderately cool skin and need to add warmth, this is it! Gray Vanish is for adding warmth to the lighter, medium and dark colors when working on slightly to moderately cool skin. Generally, this means Fitzpatrick I-III skin types!

You can also use Gray Vanish to correct medium saturated gray or blue eyebrows to achieve a soft brown. Think of Gray Vanish as a lighter, more golden version of Un-Grey.

Un-Grey is an Orange based inorganic modifier that qualifies as Extremely Warm. Warmer than Gray Vanish, Un-Grey is meant for ...

About the Trainers

Jess & Kerry aka Scalp Sista's from the UK have both worked as Permanent Make Up Artists for many years now with combined experience of around 15 years and Scalp (aka SMP) for many of these too. They are utterly obsessed with what they do and this is why they want to share it with you!

Like any industry, there is some amazing education, training and skills out there and of course there will be less so. Education, ethics and quality of work are something they are both strongly passionate about, they want to produce and champion all their students to become elite industry artists, producing top quality, creative work as well as being educated artists. They pride themselves on their ability to deliver quality theoretical and practical training to students who have little to no background in PMU/Tattooing as well as seasoned artists. They are both internationally accredited trainers with their own training schools in England as well as Scalp Sista's together.

Why Scalp Micropigmentation?

Hair loss effects so many people in many ways and for many different reasons. Sadly, more often than not, they are at a loss as to how to overcome it or what can even be done to improve it. The emotional impact of hair loss can actually be quite traumatic for many and really affect their confidence and self-esteem, so to be able to offer a solution to this is pretty incredible.

The types of clients you can see is so varied from ladies suffering with post-partum shedding, hormonal hair loss, inherited female pattern baldness, alopecia, stress related hair loss as well as men with thinning, failed hair transplants or scarring from transplants as well as male pattern baldness.

Let us tell you, no treatment will ever leave you feeling unfulfilled, when your clients see the instant results – from just one session and throughout their SMP journey, it literally is the best feeling and most rewarding job EVER! To be skilled in and qualified in such an artistically rewarding niche treatment is incredible.

How much is the course?

Their exclusive, accredited SMP course is launching in the US and being offered at an introductory price of $4,250 (regular $4,750) – that's a huge saving of $500!!!
