WHY SHOULD PERMANENT MAKEUP ARTISTS CARE ABOUT SKIN TYPES?

Why Should Permanent Makeup Artists Care About Skin Types?

Let's talk about skin! We're not just slapping on color here, we're creating art on a canvas. A canvas that your client looks at everyday. And that canvas – skin? Well, it comes in all sorts of shades, textures and tones!

That's where understanding your Fitzpatrick skin tone scale comes in handy. This knowledge will help you to understand your client's skin on a deeper level. Now, don't get me wrong, it's just a guideline or suggestion. You are the artist so you have the final say, always!

Emergency Li-FT Removal vs. Li-FT Procedure: A short guide on which to choose for your client!

Let's say a client walks into your studio with badly done permanent makeup. They are in desperate need of help. Don't panic! There are two paths ahead for you to choose: Emergency Removal and a Li-FT procedure.

Emergency Removal is your best friend within the first 48 hours post-procedure. Emergency Removal is a non-invasive solution. There is absolutely no tattooing nor penetrating the skin. Emergency Removal can only be done within the first 48 hours of the procedure being done.

Now, let's talk about the Li-FT procedure! Once the 48 hour mark has passed your client will have to wait for at least 6 weeks for the procedure to heal. Li-FT saline sessions can also be done on old procedures that have years in the skin. The saline solution is implanted into the skin using a tattoo machine or a hand-tool.

If you're ready to level up your removal game and expand your service menu, consider enrolling into the Li-FT course available online. Master the art of precision and finesse, and become the PMU artist who's always one step ahead. You can find the course here!

Please make sure to check in with your local health department and insurance to know what is required in your area to perform saline lightening procedures!
