How EU REACH Affected Li Pigments + Which Pigment Lines are Compliant

PMU In the Know with Darlene and Mytia

PMU In the Know with Darlene and Mytia

Founded by Darlene over 30 years ago, Li Pigments boasts a legacy of expertise in pigments and PMU. Her daughter, Mytia, serves as vice president and senior chemist. Expect concise tips in every Gazette, with detailed blogs for further reading.

How did the EU REACH affect Li Pigments?

Although the EU REACH regulations have identified new and lowered limitations on the various carriers, impurities, metals, etc., updates to some ranges were unreasonably lowered. These new limitations combined with new methods of testing affected some of our trusted formulations and because of the regulations we are unable to allow some pigments to be sold within the EU, as they cannot meet these unrealistic limitations. As per our scientific experience and the 35+ years in research and manufacturing pigments for permanent makeup, we strongly stand by all our Li Pigments formulations as trusted pigments that are safe for use.

With safety being the foundation for our formulations, we will always welcome positive and improved regulations within the industry. Li Pigments is a global manufacturer that will continue to follow existing global laws for existing customers while adopting the new changes to maintain compliance for affected customers without disrupting product availability as much as possible.
