

Display Cabinet Patterns

The pattern to the right is actually two patterns in one. After cutting them apart along the curve, you have one for creating the shapes for the case ends and cabinet top. Once you've cut the notch in the remaining portion, use it as a fence for shaping the ends of all the curved parts (along with a convex bit). The two patterns below provide the profiles for the legs.

