Two Brothers Racing® releases Black Series Slip-on Exhaust system for 2012 Honda CBR1000RR

Orange County, California — February 2012

Two Brothers Racing announces immediate availability for its Black Series Slip-on exhaust system for the redesigned 2012 Honda CBR1000RR. This system is a bolt-on replacement for the heavy and restrictive stainless steel exhaust canister. With a just a minimal amount of tools and a few minutes 2012 CBR1000RR owners can increase the performance and appearance of Honda's flagship sportbike.

Available with a polished aluminum, carbon fiber or titanium canister this Absolute Top Level® Slip-on system features Two Brothers Racing's trademarked V.A.L.E.® modular connection system that employs the X-Lite™ retaining ring to ensure a perfect fit. At the end, the Teflon coated, blunted, cast magnesium M-2 end-cap allows for various inserts such as the recommended P1 PowerTip™. Also included with the Black Series Slip-on is a Two Brothers designed lower side cover for a finely finished appearance.

With an 8-horsepower increase, a gain of 11 foot-pounds of torque and a 9-pound weight loss, the Black Series Slip-on performs just as well as it looks. Power gains are noticeable throughout the rev-range, and the lighter weight improves handling.
