Negro Marquina is a marble quarried from a bedrock quarry in the Basque Country located in the western Pyrenees on the border between France and Spain. This distinctive black marble will have varying amounts of white veins on each shipment. The small white spots in the slab are fossils and shells. Piece to piece variation in shade or color are inherent in all natural stone products; therefore, when installing natural stone tile, it is recommended to mix tiles from several boxes at a time during installation to achieve the best range of color. As a natural stone product it is recommended that it be sealed to extend its longevity.
