REGENERATION
September/October 2023
The industrial revolution transformed rural Lancashire into an engine of textile production at the epicentre of a web that stretched across the globe; annexing environmental and human resources in an unsustainable cycle of consumption and manufacture. Both people and places have been shaped by the industry that grew over two centuries and has now all but disappeared. In collaboration with the British Textile Biennial we investigating pre-industrial methods of production using wool from the animals farmed on the Lancashire moors, propose contemporary alternatives; from cotton plantations in Benin to recycled garments in Dhaka. With the industrial revolution as a backdrop we ask, can textile making be a regenerative act?

PIONEERS
November/December 2023
The textile word is peppered with Pioneers who’s vision and tenacity has changed the world for the better. In this issue we shine the spotlight on these unsung heros: From the founder of a Moroccan NGO who has developed a computer system based on pictograms to enable illiterate artisans to have agency over selling their own work to a global audience. The teacher in India who is training artisans in design so they can pivot their traditional skills to meet the needs of a discerning international audience. Artists who through their work broaden our perspectives and encourage us to question our past and find new ways to advance society.

UNCUT CLOTH
January/February 2024
Jean-Charles de Castelbajac talks about the three rectangles of cloth that connect all of humanity; the flag, the rug and the blanket. In this issue, we take a deep dive into the blanket. As the temperature outside dips, the simplest of textiles comes into its own, whether that is a Welsh double cloth, pieced quilt, crocheted granny squares or jacquard figured coverlet. As well as warmth blankets also offer comfort or “give courage, comfort, joy” as described by the Danish and Norwegian word Hygge. We look at big brands; Woolrich, Pendleton and Hudson’s Bay as well as artisan production around the world.

Round Up Collaboration Aimed at partners working within a budget, in a 'round up' we group our favourite companies around a theme. Recent round-ups have included a guide to South Africa, best shops in Mexico, and a guide to all things wool.

Sponsor an Article If we publish a feature that is relevant to your company we offer the opportunity for you, or your event, to be listed at the end of the piece. This is a section of bold text of up to twenty words and your website.

News Feature On a similar scale to the 'round up' we offer you the chance to share your latest news with our readers in a single-paragraph news story, accompanied by an image.

How To Projects always prove popular with our readers and website visitors. We feature a project in almost every issue. The same project is featured on the website, where free downloadable instructions are available.

IRRESISTIBLE
March/April 2024

To mark the international year of batik, we are taking a deep dive into the world of resist dyeing. From the vibrant tie-dye of West Africa to the intricate batik of Indonesia, each culture has its unique approach to this captivating art form. In Japan, shibori techniques create mesmerising patterns through precise folding, stitching, and tying. India's ancient art of Bandhani employs tiny knots to form intricate dot patterns. In Nigeria, adire artisans use cassava paste or wax to create stunning indigo-dyed designs. The Mayans of Guatemala practice the art of ikat, creating complex patterns by tie-dyeing yarns before weaving. Resist dyeing unites cultures through its timeless beauty and cultural significance.

HABITAT
May/June 2024

For this issue, we are staying close to home refreshing our domestic environment and spring cleaning our space. We take a deep dive into carpets, curtains and cushions and look at what brings us joy. From upholstered sofas stuffed with horsehair to colourful Indian Charpais to South American hammocks are woven from sisal. The textiles we keep close at hand speak of daily rituals and bring comfort to our lives. We are welcomed into the homes of makers and see first-hand the products of their labour as they return to the land. The appetite amongst consumers for farm-to-fabric enterprises shows no signs of abating.

FRANCE
July/August 2024

To coincide with the Olympics this summer, our attention turns to France. Traditional French textiles are renowned for their elegance, craftsmanship, and enduring charm. France has a rich history of textile production, with regions like Lyon, Normandy, and Alsace contributing to its diverse heritage. The luxurious silk fabrics of Lyon, known as "soie de Lyon," have adorned the fashion world for centuries with their exquisite patterns and sumptuous drape. Normandy is celebrated for its delicate lace, while Alsace is renowned for its intricate and colourful printed fabrics. These traditional textiles showcase a harmonious blend of tradition and innovation that continues to captivate worldwide.

OUR MISSION  Selvedge has been celebrating textiles for twenty years. It remains the only magazine to cover every facet of fine textiles in an intelligent, stylish and contemporary way. Within each issue, we cover: Fine Art, Craft, Fashion, Design, Interiors, Travel, Shopping and the Industry

At the heart of the magazine is a cerebral and sensual addiction to cloth and with that an appreciation of the beautifully made and carefully considered. The trend for the handmade and crafted continues unabated and coverage of a new generation of: brands, designers, artists and artisans remains the focus of the magazine. While historic and anecdotal features provide a thoughtful and inspiring context.

OUR PRODUCT  Selvedge is published six times a year, as a traditional paper magazine as well as in digital format. Each issue presents interesting and evocative textiles through memorable photography, original analysis, peerless writing and high production values. The subtle design puts textiles, as artworks, crafted products, fashion or historic objects centre stage. Selvedge not only presents textiles but provides a visual and cerebral appreciation of where they come from and why they matter.

Selvedge is not a disposable publication. Readers pore over every single page and a recent survey showed that 89% keep every issue as they would an indispensable reference book. This extends the life of advertising far beyond the on-sale period. Selvedge is trusted by its readers and relied upon when making purchases, deciding which exhibitions to visit or planning trips. Selvedge readers were described as 'strikingly obedient' by one retailer who doubled the number of visitors to her website through advertising in Selvedge, it is therefore the perfect vehicle for your targeted advertising campaigns. The magazine publishing industry has never been stronger and specialist magazines continue to benefit from consistent sales. Evidence suggests people are watching less television and reading fewer newspapers but they are buying more magazines.

By combining elements of both specialist and lifestyle titles Selvedge represents an original vision. It is the only publication for individuals who delight in the diversity textiles offer and is on sale in museums, galleries, shops and boutiques in every major city in the world. Our readership are affluent, educated, discerning, and well travelled. A survey showed our readers are a diverse group that includes practitioners, curators, dealers, architects, gallery owners, academics, designers and retailers. Selvedge also attracts a younger demographic and is popular with those studying fashion, textiles and other art based courses.

Our remit goes beyond catering to an audience with an established interest in textiles. The highest production standards make Selvedge a desirable ‘coffee table’ publication that appeals to consumers who surround themselves with fine objects. Intelligent and curious, these readers use Selvedge to learn about the stories behind the objects they cherish the most. Overall our readers find the magazine inspiring and demonstrate a high degree of loyalty to the publication. Many owning the complete collection, 77% of the visitors to our website are return customers.
ADVERTISING CAMPAIGNS We want to create a campaign tailored to your needs. We have many platforms through which to reach our audience. You can select from our ‘menu’ and we will be happy to create a bespoke package.

PRINT AND DIGITAL ADVERTISING Advertising is limited to a maximum of 10% of the publication and is woven into the body of the editorial content. We ensure our readers consider advertising as an integral part of the publication.

E-NEWSLETTER Selvedge E-newsletters are sent out to 87K readers. Our website, containing a link to our newsletter archive, also receives approximately 2000 visitors per day. ‘The only magazine in the world with a quest to find possibilities... Thank you for spreading the joy of textiles beyond the usual boundaries.’ Makiko Minagawa, Creative Director Haat, Issey Miyake.

‘I love everything about the magazine, from the paper it’s printed on to the features and advertising!’ Debra Hepburn, subscriber

‘Selvedge is an exciting and visually stimulating magazine that addresses beautifully all the things I love: textiles, art, craft and beautiful objects!’ Zandra Rhodes, designer

‘Love the magazine and google every shop advertised’ Maggie Beischer, subscriber

‘... I also like the advertising. It provides something that is unique in the magazine world and makes a great reference book. It provides for a niche market.’ Beryl Wilson, subscriber

‘A beautifully-produced small treasure that never fails to interest and excite, combining popular appeal with serious content. Even the adverts are interesting!’ Vivienne Richom, subscriber

‘From the first time I picked it up, I enjoyed the feel of the magazine. The photography was great and the articles were very interesting... I love the advertising. I go online and lookup many of the web sites. I come to England two times a year. I so look forward to spending time there. My Selvedge issues take me there when I’m at home in Minnesota.’ Alice Roe, subscriber
