FALL 2019

Watsonville, CA, April 2019—Fresh off the monumental 35th year in business, Annie Morhauser and her team of artisans are enjoying a renewed sense of pride in their handcrafted process at the Annieglass studio on California's Monterey Bay. With a brand-new showroom in Atlanta and a recently opened one in New York, Annieglass continues to reinvigorate its brand.

Fall 2019 designs unleash a powerhouse of artistic expression with Jaxson and modern updates on holiday classics with Fir and Nordic Tree. Line extensions of the best-selling Ruffle, Roman Antique and the newly released Ikey round out offerings for entertaining and gift giving. Every piece is proudly hand engraved with the studio signature.

JAXSON DINNERWARE

Set a jaw dropping table with the bold, artful drips and splatters of 24kt gold across our 5 round plates and bowls. The small plates and bowls share the same drip design made to pair up with the large splatters on the medium and large plates and serving bowl. Mix the small plates and bowls with Roman Antique, Edgey, Ruffle or the new Ikey pattern for endless combinations of creativity...and dramatic photo ops!

ICEY SERVEWARE

A shallow serving bowl and a round serving plate compliment the recently released dinnerware trio. The icy looking edge gives the clear glass unexpected texture and a modern appeal. Mixes well with Salt and Edgey patterns. Annie tried her best to make it look like melting ice - we think it does!

Annie Morhauser is the Founder of Annieglass, a highly successful line of glass tableware sold through the finest luxury stores and resorts in the nation. Handcrafting her products in Northern California since 1983, Annie developed her company to become one of the largest and most successful American glass studios. By combining skills as a designer, artisan, and business-woman, she has been able to build a highly regarded brand as well as a successful company.

Annieglass is in the collections of the Luce Foundation Center for American Art in Washington DC; the Gallery of Modern Art in Glasgow, Scotland; and the Corning Museum of Glass in Corning, New York. She is an active fundraiser for hunger, children's health, and art education. She mentors young women in business and supports scholarships at CCA, her alma mater, and local high schools.

Annie has accomplished something rare: crossing over into the commercial world, while tenaciously retaining her fine art approach. She is celebrating 36 years in business combining artisanal techniques and contemporary design with new technology.
