ABOUT COCONUT BOWLS

Our Coconut Shell Bowls are hand-made from recycled coconuts in Indonesia. We receive coconut shells from coconut plantations after their meat and water has been extracted. Each coconut is cut, cleaned and finished before they are polished with virgin coconut oil. Absolutely nothing artificial is used during the process from coconut to coconut shell bowl.

As a natural product of the earth, each coconut bowl is unique, with its own colour, size, shape and pattern. Nobody in the world will have two bowls the same, they are 1 in a billion just like us.

WHY COCONUT BOWLS

Of the billion's of coconuts harvested worldwide each year, 99.9% of coconut shells are discarded as waste or burned. Coconut shells are traditionally a bi-product of the coconut water, coconut oil and coconut flesh industries.

Coconut bowls are an environmentally friendly recycled natural product. Made by nature, crafted by hand.

OUR VALUES

It is estimated that the amount of people living a plant-based, vegan lifestyle has tripled over the past 10 years. It is no surprise that the same group of people who identify as vegan, traditionally support environmentally sustainable practices, like coconut bowls.

We choose to only work with plantations that ethically harvest their coconuts. Using monkeys to pick coconuts has become an increasingly common practice in southeast Asia.

OUR VISION

To live in a world that supports environmentally friendly initiatives above artificial manufacturing.

QUALITY CONTROL

As a product of nature, we choose to embrace the imperfections of each coconut shell. However, we also recognise the importance of consistency and quality of our products. Before each coconut bowl, is considered acceptable for sale, it must meet the following 3 conditions.

1. Each coconut shell is aged 10 months or older. This ensures a hard and strong shell.
2. Each coconut bowl has a diameter of 12-14cm and a depth of 6cm.
3. Each coconut bowl must balance flat on a surface.
