Interesting Discoveries

Robots exist in many different shapes and sizes. The functions that they serve vary based on the task they were built for. Some are so small they can fit in the blood stream. There are others that can do simple parkour. Then there are those that known as living machines. These are known as xenobots, robots created from living cells from frog embryos.

December's Theme - Hydroponics and Ecosystems

When: Saturday, February 25, 2019 from 12pm to 1pm

Our once a month Saturday S.T.E.A.M. Workshops are a wonderful opportunity for children ages 6 through 12 to learn about the world they live in. From chemistry workshops where we're analyzing what changes the color of fire to physics where we're making paper catapults while studying force. For this month's workshop we will be learning about hydroponics and ecosystems. The workshops are $10 to participate per explorer wishing to join us. You can join us as a walk-in or RSVP ahead of time through our Facebook group called Explorers' Emporium Explorers.
