Ben Goymour

New Artist

Ben, born in 1985 and a long-time resident of Peterborough, had a remarkable journey from joining the Army at 16 to serving in 29 Commando Regiment as a Bombardier. After leaving the Army, he pursued a career as a builder and carpenter.

During a trip to the Lake District in February 2017, Ben's passion for art ignited when he couldn't afford a painting he adored. This newfound passion became therapeutic for his PTSD and OCD, stemming from his service as a Section Commander in Afghanistan at just 20 years old. Renowned for his unique use of light, Ben's paintings evoke a sense of mood and emotion, captivating viewers and transporting them into the scenes he creates.

Geoff Beckett grew up on a Welsh farm near the Cheshire and Shropshire borders. Art and maths were the two subjects he pursued at school but the "sensible" option prevailed and he read Mathematics and Statistics at York University. He worked in finance and accounts for a couple of years before a series of commissions and the chance to run a gallery brought him back into the art world. He spent the next few years splitting his time between painting and running a gallery and framing business with his sister near their family home, before dropping out of the business to concentrate on his artwork. Geoff now lives in rural Cheshire and paints from home in a house that often gets overrun by artwork but provides a cosy retreat to paint in.
