Patrick Cornée

NEW ARTIST

Patrick Cornée, born in 1962 in Toulouse, France, is a painter currently living and working in Mougins.

Encouraged by his military father, Cornée enlisted in the French Navy at the age of 16. After six years of sailing around the world, he began to feel a longing to paint once again and it became obvious to him that this was the path he was destined to take. And so, he attended art school in Toulon and took classes in a painter's workshop. The artist began developing his own style and working with national and international galleries.

Cornée is inspired by artists like Andy Warhol and is known for his pop and colourful aesthetic. The artist wishes to evoke joy, cheerfulness and care-freeness, as well as to share his love of life. He likes to explore new materials, formats and techniques, using oil paints, acrylic paints, spray paints, knives and paintbrushes, as well as through etching and collages.

LOUISE BROWN

Louise is a self taught artist based in rural Lincolnshire where she lives with her husband and two Lurchers. At school she loved art, but had an uninspiring art teacher, so she decided to pursue a career as a Radiographer. It soon became clear to Louise that her job was unfulfilling and started painting as a hobby after attending a few evening classes. She was encouraged to continue her passion for art when she started selling her work on eBay and to friends. Eventually, as her painting technique improved, she was accepted by an art publisher and became a professional artist.

Louise's love of animals is evident in her paintings, and they capture the personality of the subject. Her paintings tend to be quirky and humorous, and her painting style is loose and expressive.

MARIE MILLS

Marie is an inventive artist who consistently pushes the boundaries of her technique, producing paintings that sing with her passion for life and the natural world.

Her technical skill as a painter combines with an in-depth knowledge of plants gained from her mother, a keen botanist and gardener. Whilst she began her working life as a nurse, a move to Cornwall in 2000 gave Marie the opportunity to begin painting full time. Asked to describe her technique, Marie says, "I take great delight in starting a new painting, brushing in the skies, this is the only time I use a brush; I then use pallet knives and my fingers to create the hedgerow."

"Having worked in Design and advertising for twenty years and moving later in to the wall art industry, creating things has always been a part of my life.

Inspired by a love of all things green and having been fortunate enough to have spent a childhood playing in fields, I still return from walks with handfuls of weeds and grasses. The texture and shapes are an endless source of painting material, the most beautiful things can often be found in the most unlikely of places from the roadside to waste ground.

The end result for me when painting an image is to hopefully create something that is 'pretty', that is simply a pleasure to look at and lets you find a new little detail the more you look in to the image."

NICOLA JANE ROWLES

Living in Cornwall on the edge of Bodmin moor and near to the coast, I am surrounded by beauty and nature. My studio and home gallery has views to Dartmoor over rolling fields, the home of animals fur and feather, small and large giving me a wealth of inspiration.

I love to create interesting paintings with movement and vibrancy using a mixture of inks and watercolour, letting the paint work create beautiful natural marks and patterns.

DINA PEREJOGINA

Dina Perejogina was born in St Petersburg, Russia, in April 1976, growing up with her mother, a very talented artist and brother in St Petersburg. Following in her parents' footsteps, she graduated from the St Petersburg Art Restoration school and subsequently became interested in wildlife drawing and painting. In 1996 Dina moved to the UK and became a British Citizen, and is happily married with two lovely children.

"My love of wildlife and fine art has led me to develop a very detailed style of work. I will usually spend several weeks on a painting to ensure I capture the intricacy and essence of my subject. I always endeavour to create emotion in my paintings, in the hope that the owners of my work will be moved to smile whenever they catch sight of it."

EXCLUSIVE ARTIST

Catherine was born in North Yorkshire and began painting at an early age. Her love of watercolour developed rapidly and, after a successful career in stained glass design, she made the decision to paint professionally. Catherine's pictures bring the colour and zest of the great outdoors to your walls. Her quirky watercolour-and-ink paintings of playful animals have a sense of fun, while her botanical prints are peaceful and soothing.

ABSTRACT LANDSCAPE PAINTER

I like to contrast elements of tight, structured paint work with loose, atmospheric washes and gestural marks. Colour and texture are both dominant elements in my paintings. Expect to see a mixture of sweeping brush strokes, palette knife work, dripping paint, scratched back surfaces and washy pools of paint. I respond intuitively to each of the landscapes that I have walked and seek to capture the elemental nature and energy of a place rather than to record a literal interpretation. Like the patina of time, my work is multi-layered and built up and scraped back over time. This adds both depth and textural variety to my outcomes.

Anna is a self taught artist and mainly paints in oils. All of her paintings are created with love and care from her studio in Cotgrave. She loves travelling and documenting interesting parts of nature, seascapes, skies, harbours and mainly light. The places she visits, live long in her memory until she is ready to bring them back to life on canvas with her own interpretation.

She starts the artwork by creating a suggestion of the mark using acrylic, gesso or other media and then covers it with many layers of oil paint. Texture is integral part of her work and she enjoys the process of evolving areas as they emerge. She works mainly with palette knives, fingers and a variety of other implements as well as brushes to create diversity in her mark-making. Her combination of texture, strong colours and light create an uplifting and positive result. Some paintings take a few hours, some a couple of days and others a few weeks as she lives with the painting and constantly adds changes and details to make sure she has captured everything she wanted to say. Her abstracts are strongly influenced by her passion for Argentine tango and emotional response to nature.

ASHVIN HARRISON

Ashvin Harrison is an Australian artist living in Queensland, Australia. In 2017, after moving there from Toowoomba to start a life as a professional full-time artist. Ashvin had been a hobby artist for a few years prior, sketching and drawing in his spare time. He began to create in unique and made up ways - much trial and even more error. In 2015 Ashvin started selling some of his art online. To his surprise, artwork was selling within that month and so he started creating works to express his passions and interests in life.

GEORGIA ELLIOTT

NEW ARTIST

When Georgia begins to intuitively pour paint onto canvas, the artist has no concept of the landscape she is creating. Rather, she is revelling in the release of automatic painting: creating from a place of freedom, throwing her whole body at the canvas. It's only around 5 layers into the painting process when she begins to uncover land, water, and subtle signposts of a place once visited: a specific mountain in Iceland, the unmistakable bone-white cliffs of Seven Sisters. She gently and organically excavates this landscape, the memory blossoming like ink in water with each expressive stroke of the brush.

EELCO MAAN

Eelco Maan's compositions in colour can be compared to musical arrangements. Strong contrasts are blended exemplary and with a superb sense of harmony into a unity of subtle variances. His paintings possess a fascinating, mysterious quality which occupy a world of their own, an indescribable world which by far transcends our rational existence.

OLIVIER MESSAS

The wanderer... Here a vision of life I feel very close to. Living in France and Germany, my life, like my paintings, are a mirror of my journeys and imaginations. Journeys across countries, continents and cultures, looking for diversity and new impressions – and journeys to my interior in the search of inner balance.

Duncan Palmer

Duncan started painting professionally aged 19 and had his first exhibition that year. Soon after this he gave up painting to study Architecture in London but returned to pursue his career as a full time artist a few years later and has continued to attract collectors who appreciate fine oil and watercolour paintings.

Inspired by Edward Seago, William Turner, Julius Olson and the Newlyn School of Artists who worked in Cornwall in the last century Duncan's distinctive representational style captures texture, light and atmosphere in his landscapes and coastal scenes. He endeavours to evoke the same principals in his treatment of the interplay of light that those artists so successfully achieved in their paintings. More recently he has diversified into a more fluid approach using oils on gesso board as a medium for his beach scenes to show his love of the sea with its movement, rhythms and space.

CAROLINE RICHMOND

I am a self taught artist and have painted big skies and beaches for fifteen years, working with mainly oil on canvas or board.

I aim to portray a little romanticism in my images as well as the feeling of open elements, freedom and space using the wonderful light and ever changing conditions identifiable with North Norfolk where my home and gallery can be found.

JANICE MCGLOINE

Lancashire born Janice has painted professionally since 1993. Having recently fulfilled a long standing dream to live by the sea, she now lives and works in Cumbria where she paints and runs art workshops from her small studio/gallery. She finds plenty of inspiration in this naturally beautiful part of the country. The ever changing coastline and unspoilt woodlands are a constant revelation. Having a varied portfolio, from portraits to flowers, architecture to landscape. Her more recent work shows her love of nature and the sea.
