Whether you're shopping for a birthday, a special occasion or just to show someone you care, you can feel extra good about that perfect pressie.

Giving gifts seems a constant part of life. Birthdays, baby showers, weddings, and 'just because' days all call for a stellar, original and (of course) aesthetic gift. But between the wrapping paper, the packaging and the panic-buying of unnecessary items just to avoid being pitied on the present table, you've likely not just left a dent in your credit card, but in your carbon footprint, too. But if you - like me - are trying to be a little more conscious about where and how you spend your money this year, you might like to think about buying eco-friendly gifts for those you love.

We've rounded up 22 gifts for everyone on your list, made by businesses that support sustainable practices, are cruelty-free and vegan, and make a conscious effort to give back, reuse, and recycle.
