EDITORS' PICKS

Sometimes, everyday products our editors use don't make it into our in-depth, long-form comparative pieces in which we vigorously test similar products head-to-head. That's where our Editors' Picks come in — where we highlight everyday products we personally stand by and use on a daily basis, and think you should too.

In June, we were introduced to a plethora of products, from beautifully scented hand sanitizer to game-changing duffel bags. Some were forgettable, while others left a lasting impression. Because we're committed to spotlighting the best products out there, we've decided to curate roundups of our favorite products we try each month.

Keep reading to check out the products we tested and couldn't get enough of in June, or look back at our May favorites.

Koala Eco Natural Multi-Purpose Cleaner

I love the lemony scent of this eco-friendly multipurpose cleaner that smells fresh rather than perfumy. It's safe to use on all kitchen surfaces — counters, cooktops, refrigerators, microwaves — and any other area of the house that might need a wipe-down. The spray, along with Koala Eco's dish soap (which comes with a handy pump dispenser), have become my go-to cleaning products. — Sophie Shaw, associate beauty editor
