The COVID-19 outbreak has made hand sanitizer one of the most sought-after personal hygiene essentials (after toilet paper), with stocks running so low a few months ago that alcohol distillers were forced to start making it alongside their boutique gin.

Thankfully, the antibacterial hand gel is no longer a rare commodity, in fact, you could almost say there is an oversupply of the stuff now, with many cosmetic and home fragrance brands now producing their own sweet-smelling sanitizer solutions.

So, if you're sick of the potent alcohol-scented sanitizer that dries out your skin and makes your head spin from the fumes, try these nourishing and beautifully-fragranced hand sanitizers instead.
