With the stay-at-home order, I haven't gone to the grocery store (or anywhere) for a few weeks.

And I'm starting to daydream about all the fresh food I ate...

And the delicious items that filled our fridge and pantry:

Prior to the pandemic.
To stave off cravings and conserve our [empty] food supply.

I tried:
- The remaining snacks around the house....

But that only worked for a short amount of time.

The fridge now:

What’s in our fridge and pantry now:

Left over from last summer’s fishing trip.

(More info - 315’s mome.)
Last Fall, the husband bought cat food and used it as bait...

To catch the pesky raccoons

Before they ate everything in the garden.
Once we successfully lured and caught a raccoon, we transported it off our property. We released it back into the wild.

Even so, there are plenty of advantages to living in the Northwoods during a pandemic. We’ve been social distancing for so many years that it’s become the norm.

The forest is filled with wild edibles:
- Ferns
- Squirrels
- More mushrooms
- Berries
- Reindeer
- Grasses
And we never grow tired of bird watching...

The squirrels trying to get to the bird feeder.
