

Nail-Aid's Spray Away hits Walmart shelves

BENTONVILLE, Ark. — Among the products Walmart is bringing into stores to up its beauty game is one bringing consumers a new way to remove nail polish. Nail-Aid on Wednesday announced that its Spray Away aerosol nail polish remover was getting an exclusive Walmart launch at all of the retailer's more than 4,500 stores.

Nail-Aid said that Spray Away is able to remove even dark polish while hydrating skin and nails. The aerosol is free of parabens, phthalates, toluene, formaldehyde and sulfates, the company said. It comes in three varieties — non-acetone and acetone in keratin and cocoa butter formulations, as well an acetone hyaluronic and collagen formulation.

Spray Away carries a $5 suggested retail price.
