

how to Make Crepe Paper Daffodils

MATERIALS NEEDED

floral wire (the thicker the better) for stems, scissors, crepe paper in both green and yellow varieties, floral tape, craft glue, faux flower stamens (in white, cream, or yellow), light brown or gold tissue paper

CUT floral wire to desired stem length. SECURE a cluster of flower stamens on one end of your floral wire. WRAP your wire from top to bottom in floral tape. If you want thicker stems, you can first wrap the wire in strips of tissue paper, then wrap over top with floral tape. TIP: the floral tape will easily stick to itself and become stickier as it stretches.

MEASURE and cut a rectangular piece of crepe to become the trumpet part of the daffodil. Gently stretching the top part of your rectangle will help to create a flared, frilly edge. JOIN the short sides together and glue. Put your crepe cylinder over the top of your completed stem and pinch the bottom part to create the trumpet. SECURE to stem with glue. CUT six identical crepe pieces and gently mold them into the desired petal shape.

GLUE your six crepe petals to the trumpet shape you made. WRAP the bottom of your daffodil with floral tape to secure it firmly to the stem. OPTIONAL: Add small triangular pieces of delicate tissue paper towards the base of the flower to create the "spathe".
