Experience the natural allure of engineered stone baths and basins from DADO

A long, hectic day calls for a spot of seclusion to revive and there's no better place for it than the bathroom. It's the only room in the house to afford you such a luxury, so to neglect it is to neglect yourself — and you don't deserve that.

Make your bathroom a room you want to spend time in, where you can escape from daily pressures and refresh. DADO freestanding baths not only provide you with your own spa experience, but are beautiful and enhance any bathroom — whether building from scratch or renovating.

Take a cue from the European trendsetters at the Italian Bathware Show and treat your room to a freestanding bathtub for an instant boost of style and extravagance. Michele Kordic of Brisbane's Elite Bathware and Tiles says of her favourite freestanding tubs: "We love using the DADO products. The stylish simplicity of the designs combined with the soft, natural materials used in their manufacture always enhance a bathroom."

The material Michele is referring to is DADOquartz and was successfully used for kitchen benchtops even before it was recognised by the leaders of designer bathware. It has fast become a favourite material in the industry, admired at the world-famous Cersaie show in Bologna, Italy, in 2008; the Idéo Bain 2008 show in Paris, France; and the Woonbeurs Amsterdam 2008; Ish 2008 in Germany; and Decorex 2008 in South Africa. In 2008, DADOquartz made a splash at DesignEX 2008 in Brisbane and is now available through Elite Bathware and Tiles.

DADOquartz bathware is being hailed as the new granite thanks to its scratch-, heat-, mildew- and mould-resistant qualities. It also doesn't hurt to know that it's easy to clean and boasts an elegant satin finish, which is silky-smooth to the touch. Another drawcard of DADOquartz is its ability to retain the water temperature permitting long and relaxing soaks. Michele believes it simply must be experienced! DADOquartz is perfect for homeowners wanting a product that's stylish and durable with a soft, natural look.

DADOquartz, an engineered stone, cleverly combines the advantages of granite and polymer products. State-of-the-art manufacturing technology ensures a void-free material, which has no fissures, veins or other imperfections that could compromise its strength or appearance. It's cleaner, safer, sturdier and more consistent than natural stone. In its application as bathware, DADOquartz becomes uniquely appealing. Your bathroom deserves it and so do you.
