TIPS FROM TONY

Wire gauge numbers can often times be confusing. The biggest misunderstanding is how the wire gauge number correlates to amperage specifications. When the wire gauge number goes down, the thicker the gauge is, and the higher the amperage it can handle. 18AWG is for 10A, 16AWG is for 13A, 14AWG is for 15A, and so on.

Holiday Shipping

We know the holidays require a lot of planning and can be stressful. With all the things that can go wrong, we want to make some things go right. Power outages and shipping delays cause headaches during the holiday season, and we can provide solutions for both. A little planning can go a long way.

Firstly, shipping is a priority. Don't let your packages fall victim to delays. There are some delays we cannot foresee, like extreme weather. We will not be held responsible for delays of any type with our shipping carriers. Now is the time to take inventory of power related solutions you might need in the home during the holidays. It also happens to be our best sale of the year this week.

Remember a few key things:

- If you order from www.ACWORKS.com before 3 PM CST, your order will leave our warehouse the same day.
- If you are a Prime member, always check Amazon to see if they can fulfill the order quicker.
- Our warehouse is closed on weekends and for the holidays. We do NOT ship on non-business days. See page three for our 2023 holiday schedule.

Second, don't forget about power outages. You don't want to be left with a house full of people on the holiday and not be able to cook, use the lights, or provide entertainment. Make sure you double check your back up power solution. Tune up your generator and purchase the power adapters you need for peace of mind later. Will you need extra outlet? Power distribution, splitters, extension cords, or power strips are useful during the holidays.
