

MEDIA REVIEWS

THE WISDOM TREE

Sunil Shah, Writer/Director | TheWisdomTreeFilm.com

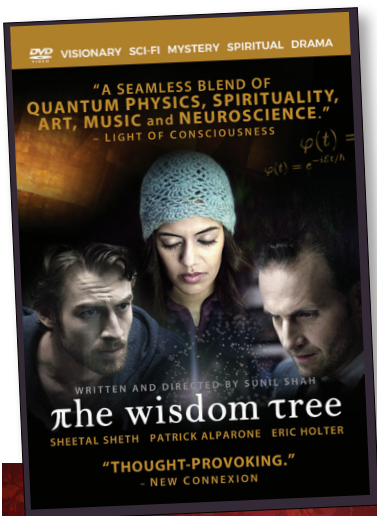

Available from Amazon.com

Three very different people — a quantum physicist, a neuroscientist and an FBI agent — find themselves drawn into a spiraling mystery with no clear answers. Confronted with a bizarre car accident, the three must interpret clues that defy common sense. Their collective quest takes them from science to art to music to mysticism in a widening search for answers.

After an intense outward chase to satisfy their rational minds, the trio realizes the answers they desire are buried deep within themselves. Then the real mystery begins. As each seeker begins to embrace the true nature of reality, each is rewarded with revelations beyond their wildest imaginings. What they learn leaves them humbled and in awe of the strange and beautiful universe we call home. In this film, when everything makes sense, nothing makes sense.

This highly philosophical narrative has been applauded by scientists, artists, thinkers, scholars, media, academia, students and audiences from 10 to more than 80 years old. Physicist and NASA award winner Russell Targ writes, "Wonderful metaphorical film. I like the way you pointed out the paradoxes in modern physics together with how they reflect in life. I loved the color palette, art and music in the film. Very unique sci-fi. So much to enjoy and think about."

One fan says this a small movie tackling a big subject and doing it well. It's definitely a movie unlike any other. ☘

If you like "The Matrix," this spiritual, sci-fi drama belongs in your home theater library. The mystery's answers are within.