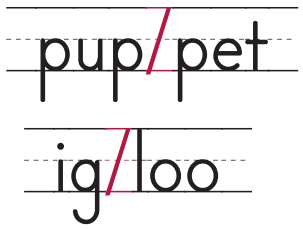
Words have parts called syllables. Every syllable has one vowel sound. If double consonants are in the words, divide the words between the double consonants.

If two consonants are in the middle of a word and each make a sound, divide the words between the two letters.



Draw a / to show where the words are divided into syllables.

r a c c o o n r o o s t e r b a l l o o n

Use the clues to find the spelling words. A list is in the orange box.
