About our sculptures

Our large-sized sculptures are produced by a unique and proprietary dry casting process. Over 90% of the finished cast is natural marble, which gives it the look and feel of natural marble.

Outdoors & Indoors

The mineral composite we use to produce our statues is a material very resistant to outdoor conditions.

Color selection to match the architecture of the building:

- Pure white
- Brown patina
- Bespoke

Pure white, with its natural shadows, is the most bright option for indoors and fits most interiors.

In order to keep an outdoor statue with the best look possible, wax or polyurethane spray can be applied once a year. During cold winters, the accumulation of ice in the crevices needs to be avoided.

Crevises should be salted to deter the ice from expanding or simply be covered.

Installation

The marble casts are not completely solid in order to reduce installation costs and technical difficulty. The core is composed of high-density polyurethane foam and sand to give stability and strength to the cast.

Installation methods:

- Stand alone
- Cementitious glue between the base and installation surface
- Resin glue between the base and installation surface
- Mechanical means: iron bar through the statue and the installation surface
- Mechanical means: hooks on the installation surface catching the statue
