AWNINGS

Are functional and elegant solution for protecting terraces and interiors from excessive sunlight. The first awnings appeared in France during the reign of Louis XIV. They quickly gained popularity and spread throughout Europe. Today, awnings can be seen in old towns in restaurants' gardens, on flats' facades as well as on private terraces and balconies of detached houses.

The development of technology used for fabric production, construction and automation has meant that awnings, apart from their decorative function, have gained a number of practical advantages: they significantly reduce operating costs in air-conditioned rooms, serve as an exclusive advertising medium and above all provide shade and comfort to terrace users.
