"I always choose songs that have good storylines. And on this particular session they all had great storylines. May not have been some that I would do or say personally, but you don't always look at it from a personal standpoint. You look at it like a script, and you are playing a role and telling a story and you want it to be believable. So you have to picture yourself in that. What would you do if you were in that position? And it makes it easier to sing, because in your head while you're singing it you are that person in that position. And since I been around since mud I've had a lot of life and living under my belt, so it's not hard for me to put myself in a lot of those positions."
