

FAQ

What about the picture round?

As you may know, The Quizmasters provides 5 rounds of written trivia and 1 picture round. We suggest you tell your players that round #6 is the picture round that they should wait to submit round #6 until all 5 previous rounds are submitted. You will need to click “Next round” when you are finished with round 5 and announce that you are now accepting submissions for the picture round. Additionally, the picture round will still need to be passed out, displayed on screens, or displayed somewhere so all players can see it. At the moment, it can not be displayed on the app. Be creative! Or, if you don’t want to use the picture round, simply set the number of rounds to 5 when creating your game.

How do I use a wild card?

If you use a wild card round (which doubles the points for that round) simply tell your players to write Wild Card in the “Optional” box for that particular round. If you see “wild card”, manually double the points.

What if I make a mistake?

You can manually edit scores on this app.

What if my computer dies and I log out of the app?

Just log in again to get back into your game! All progress is saved.

Can I use my phone?

As a host, we suggest you use a tablet or laptop. Players can use any device.

What’s next?

This was initially developed to help bars socially distance their trivia but we have quickly come to realize that this tool may be useful beyond this difficult time. We are actively working on upgrading, updating and making this an even more powerful web app. We are excited for the future!
