- Wash your hands before removing the detox from the sealed package. Unravel strings from pearls & tie a knot close to pearls for easy removal.
- Lay on your back with your knees to your chest. Take the longest finger you have (middle finger) and use it to push the detox (1) deeply into your vagina.
- Leave one Yoni Detox pearl in vagina for 48-72 hours (2-3 days), after 48-72 hours remove Yoni Detox Pearl
- Wear a pantyliner and allow the vagina to discharge toxins for the next 24-48 hours, wait 24 hours before inserting a new Yoni Detox Pearl
- Insert 2nd Yoni Detox Pearl in vagina, keep in for 48-72 hours (2-3 days), wait 24 hours before inserting another detox pearl.
- Repeat steps 1 and 2 for third Yoni Detox Pearl

After you have chosen to stop your detox, remove pearl from vagina, wash with warm water, some women may want to use their finger to take out discharge, if doing so please be careful not to scratch the inside of your vagina, we do advise you to wait for it to come out naturally this may happen over a period of 2-3 days.

What Are the Main Ingredients in Empress Organics Yoni Detox Pearls?

Borneol, Stemona Sessilifolia Miq, Kochia Scoparia, Motherwort, Rhizoma Smilacis Glabrae, Angelica, Rhizoma Chuanxiong, Osthol.

Benefits of cleansing and detoxing the womb are to maintain a healthy acid environment of the vagina at (pH 4.5), and to remove pathogens and disease. These ingredients regulate the function of endocrine gland secretion, normalize blood circulation, improve facial skin complexion, wrinkles, and hyper-pigmentation. They also treat the following gynecological ailments: endometriosis, cervical erosion and dysplasia, pelvic inflammatory disease, hemorrhoids (aids in wound healing, bleeding cessation, removal of nodules).

Borneol: Is very rare herb, it reduces pain, hot flashes, plays an important role in severe disease also while tightening vaginal muscles. When the pearls are inserted the herbs begin to break down the build up of toxins that are hindering the vagina from operating normally. Traditionally, it has been believed that fibrosis is an irreversible condition. Fibrosis involves an increase in tissues in the region of wounds and this condition may sometimes result in development of benign tumors, cirrhosis, and Crohn's disease, which are considered as forerunners of cancer. Findings of latest studies have demonstrated that use of borneol can actually reverse fibrosis.

People in Asia use borneol for treating cardiovascular diseases. This organic compound possesses anti-coagulant or blood thinning properties. In addition, findings of several studies have revealed that borneol is also effective in treating inflammation, relieving pain and also eliminating odours. Borneol also possesses anti-bacterial properties and, hence, this naturally occurring organic compound is effective for eliminating or inhibiting pathogenic bacteria that are often found in clinics and hospitals, including staphylococcus aureus, viridans streptococci and beta hemolytic streptococcus.

Stemona Sessilifolia Miq.: Helps regulate blood flow around womb while killing parasites and helps to relax tension in uterine muscles which can cause menstrual cramps for women with endometriosis. Stemona Sessilifolia Miq (Stemona Root) Trichomonas vaginitis Main indications include moistening and descending the lung Qi to stop cough, and killing parasites. In terms of coughing, it is dedicated to all no matter it is acute and chronic, tuberculosis, or whooping cough. In particular, honeyed one is good at curing cough caused by lung deficiency. As for killing parasite, it is suitable for head lice, body louse, pinworms, and vaginal itching.

Kochia Scoparia: Has a anti fungal effect, eases itching and problematic urination. This herb is commonly used for erectile dysfunction, premature ejaculation, genital eczema, trichomonas infection, postpartum uterine prolapse, chronic, non-healing skin ulcers in children, allergic dermatitis, sumac allergy, tinea manus (hands) and tinea pedis (foot), abnormal vaginal discharge, pharyngitis, peripheral neuritis, and so on. What's more, it is reported that cnidium can increase both man and woman's libido and treat male and female infertility. In accordance with Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM), Kochia herb is viewed as acrid, bitter, and cold in properties. It covers kidney and bladder meridians, Its main functions are clearing heat and promoting diuresis and dispelling wind and arresting itching. Kochia scoparia uses include difficult urination, stranguria with turbid discharge, gynaecological diseases, bloody flux, rubella, eczema, scabies, pruritus, sores, and so on.

Motherwort: Helps to regulate menstrual cycle while removing toxins around the perineum area. It also helps with vaginal dryness, balance hormones, PMS, tones the uterine muscles, improve vaginal elasticity and bolster libido. Motherwort has several remedial properties, but it is basically known for its beneficial qualities in treating conditions of the womb. For instance, the herb is exceptionally useful in treating painful, belated or suppressed menstrual cycles and also provides relief during child birth. Motherwort is basically an excellent antidote for treating the female reproductive organ disorders. This herb invigorates the uterus muscles and hence is effectual in treating conditions like delayed menstruation, menstrual pain and even premenstrual anxiety. Motherwort is effective in treating pre-menstrual syndrome, particularly during the initial menopause.

The history of the motherwort shows that the herb is an effectual medication for the entire circulation system including the cardiac, vascular, heart and blood, especially where there are any irregular or fast heart beat or when the system is provoked by the anxiety owing to trauma or anxiety. It may be noted here that the motherwort also functions as a sedative and anti-spasmodic that helps in controlling the heart. In addition, the herb also acts like a tonic to reinforce the heart. Herbal medicine practitioners also use motherwort to treat high blood pressure. The herb is also effective in curing reproductive system disorders among women. The anti-spasmodic action of motherwort helps in stimulating the uterine muscles thereby treating delayed menstruation cycles. Moreover, motherwort is effective in treating pre-menstrual syndrome, particularly during the initial menopause. The Chinese herbal medicine practitioners use the motherwort to cure several other reproductive system disorders and they include irregular menstruation cycles, pre-menstrual pain, and treating infertility as also curing the stock-still abdominal masses.

Rhizoma Smilacis Glabrae: Works as a anti-inflammatory properties, expels toxins, alleviates pain, and helps to treat gonorrhoea. Tu Fu Ling is also known as Smilax. The sweet, bland, cool and non-toxic herb has been used in TCM to treat leptospirosis, acute dysentery, acute or chronic inflammation of kidneys, mercury toxin, psoriasis, and fungal infections. Traditionally it is considered one of the best herbs for the treatments of syphilis, paralysis, and severe sores, today it is still found with anti-tumor effect. Primary functions are to remove dampness, detox, and ease joint movement. Basic sarsaparilla root uses and indications include stranguria with turbid discharge due to damp heat, abnormal vaginal discharge, carbuncles, scrofula, scabies, syphilis, limb spasm caused by mercury poisoning, arthralgia and myalgia. Sarsaparilla and its preparations are commonly used for the treatment of syphilis and gonorrhea clinically. This herb is used to promote blood circulation, it is used in the inhibition of endogenous platelet aggregation and anti-coagulation. This herb contains a anti tumor property by scavenging and directly killing the tumor cells.

Angelica: Is known for its use in treating menopause, cramps and PMS. For thousands of years, healers around the world have used these herbs to regulate menstruation, relieve cramping and menopausal distress, promote healthy blood circulation, balance hormones, and generally ease the journey through the childbearing and menopausal years. Women who integrate angelica/ dong gui into their weekly self nourishment program often experience side effects which include, but are not limited to, increased sexual pleasure and libido, the alleviation of constipation, a rosy complexion, and sound sleep. Both angelicas offer abundant minerals and vitamins. They are brimming with antioxidants, including rich stores of vitamins A, B, (especially B12), and E. Those B vitamins, in combination with abundant niacin, magnesium and calcium, help strengthen the nerves, relieving tension and promoting sleep. All that vitamin E helps to keep skin, internal organs and tissues, especially those of the bladder and vagina, well lubricated, moist and flexible. The angelica's high iron content nourishes and builds blood, prevents anemia and increases vital energy.

This herb is useful to end hot flashes and also seen as a natural aphrodisiac. Chinese herbology classifies this herb as bitter and acrid in taste and slightly warm in properties. Its key functions are dispelling wind, eliminating dampness and eliminating cold to stop pain. It has anti-inflammatory, analgesic and sedative effect. Angelica offers a number of health benefits and, hence, is used to treat various health conditions. This herb warms up the body and also serves as a tonic. The entire angelica plant is used to provide relief from dyspepsia, stomach pain and gas. In addition, this herb may also prove to be helpful in treating poor blood circulation, as it augments flow of blood to the body's peripheral regions. It is especially considered to useful for treating Buerger's disease, a medical condition wherein the arteries in the legs and feet are constricted. As angelica enhances the blood circulation and promotes expulsion of phlegm, its warming as well as tonic attributes provide relief to patients suffering from bronchitis and other chest conditions that make the sufferer weak.

Rhizoma Chuanxiong: Is an important ingredient for gynecological disorders, eliminates cold pathogens in the vagina, promotes blood circulation and helps with blood stasis. This herb is commonly used for pain relief and promoting blood circulation. Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM) thinks of this herb as acrid and warm in properties. It covers three meridians, such as liver, gallbladder, and pericardium. Its basic functions are to enhance blood circulation to promote movement of Qi, promote Qi circulation and remove obstruction in the collateral, and dispel wind and relieve pain. Ligustrazine, or Chuanxiongzine, can expand the coronary artery, increase coronary blood flow, improve myocardial oxygen supply, and decrease myocardial oxygen consumption. It also can dilate cerebral blood vessels, reduce vascular resistance, significantly increase blood flow to the brain and body, and improve microcirculation. Chuanxiongzine can reduce platelet activity, inhibit platelet aggregation, and prevent thrombosis.

Osthol: Strengthens uterus, kills parasites, relieves itching, increases sexual libido, fertility and clears skin, also good for infections or any bacteria build up. Chinese herbs are known for their ability of relieving itching and medicinal uses of curing eczema, pruritus vulvae, and abnormal vaginal discharge. Actually cnidium fruit is good at dispelling cold, removing dampness, and killing parasites to relieve itching, which is ideal for itch and scabies caused by cold-dampness or deficiency-cold; kochia scoparia fruit is specialized at clearing heat and promoting diuresis to relieve itching that is due to damp-heat. Besides, the former one can still warm kidney and tonify Yang in order to treat impotence, uterus-cold induced infertility, and lumbago caused by dampness; the latter one also cures difficult urination and difficulty and pain in micturition due to heat stranguria.
