LINEAR

For Melbourne Design Week 2023, Coco Flip has developed a series of experimental works that focus primarily on the potential of pleating in a contemporary context.

In an effort to highlight the history and legacy of Specialty Pleaters, an almost century-old pleating factory, the pieces explore various systems of clamping, hanging, and pinning pleats to create lighting sculptures.

Combining pleated linen with reclaimed timber, the material contrast emphasises the delicate, nuanced, and ephemeral nature of pleating.

Inspired by modernist architecture, the interface between materials, and ceremony, these lights offer a warm glow, much the same as a glimpse through a window at dusk.

Accompanying the works in LINEAR is a short, documentary-style film sharing Coco Flip's collaborative approach to working alongside local makers and taking inspiration from their traditional methods of production.

The film, produced by Silky Jazz Films, reveals the creative process, the beauty in industry, and asks what stands to be lost when these artisan industries are no longer viable.

“Certainly for artists of all stripes, the unknown, the idea or the form or the tale that has not yet arrived, is what must be found. It is the job of artists to open doors and invite in prophecies, the unknown, the unfamiliar; it’s where their work comes from, although its arrival signals the beginning of the long disciplined process of making it their own.”

— Rebecca Solnit, A Field Guide to Getting Lost
