From left: The spacious patio at Dahlia Bar & Bistro is the ideal setting for socially distant happy hours; The SIL pop-up shop will feature emerging designers like Chasseur NYC, a buzzy brand known for its luxe furs.

DINE A new East Dallas eatery is coming in hot this month, bringing burgers, brews and a casual-cool atmosphere. Founded by husband-wife duo—and restaurant biz vets—Todd and Jennifer Dickerson, BarNone touts a serious list of spirits. Complete with a 40-foot bar, spacious indoor seating and an outdoor patio, BarNone is primed to be the new “it” place for the White Rock crowd. 718 N. Buckner Blvd., Ste. 100, barnonedallas.com SHOP For a highly curated shopping experience, look no further than Natalie Bloomingdale’s The SIL—short for “stuff I like.” Lucky for us, the online platform is bringing its limited-edition designs to Dallas this month, in the form of an exclusive trunk show. Shop RTW apparel and accessories from the exquisite penthouse suites at the Rosewood Mansion on Turtle Creek. Send your RSVP to hello@shopthesil.com and secure a spot for this pop-up event, which takes place Nov. 18 and 19. 2821 Turtle Creek Blvd., shopthesil.com SUPPORT Chi Omega Christmas Market has been a beloved Dallas tradition for 43 years, with ticket proceeds from the annual market benefiting various North Texas charities. This year the holiday bazaar is going virtual, so you can do your Christmas shopping from the comfort of home. The online event runs Nov. 10 to 21. chiomegaxmas.org SIP Peruse an extensive list of floral-forward spirits at Dahlia Bar & Bistro, a new resto-bar concept in Old East Dallas. The gin cocktail garnished with a snap pea—apely named the Bend and Snap—is a must, as is the Southern European-inspired menu. 3300 Ross Ave., dahliaonross.com GIFT As the holiday season approaches, Forget Me Not is your best bet for top-notch presents. With an anticipated opening date of mid-November, the beloved store is expanding its space at The Shops of Highland Park to include a bistro and bakery. Indulge in a sweet treat while doing some holiday shopping, with popular items ranging from posh pajama sets to custom monogram and embroidery offerings. 4260 Oak Lawn Ave., forgetmenotdallas.com
