Easy Styles

All of our Easy styles are organic cotton cut & sew knits, made fully in the USA from fiber to garment.

We've been working for years with a fabric supplier who was a pioneer in domestic organic cotton production. The cotton is grown by several farms in Texas. It's then processed in North Carolina in a facility that uses plant-based alternatives to harsh chemical scours.

Waste water is recycled in a circular system and the dyes are low impact.

Our mission with the Easy collection is to make staples that are soft, comfortable and made without harsh chemical processing: clean for your body and soft on the planet.

We use a variety of weights and textures in this group: a lightweight cotton jersey on our tops, and a slightly heavier weight on our bottoms and dresses which is more substantial and less transparent. The French terry is a soft, lightweight sweatshirt material. The Rib is a lightweight baby rib.

The Natural colorway is undyed and unbleached.

Climate Beneficial, Bio Regional, Undyed Wool / Alpaca

50% Alpaca, 50% Wool

This yarn is made using a blend of undyed wool and alpaca, sourced from producers in the U.S. Each farm's practices are focused on improving soil health in order to maximize the drawdown of carbon from the atmosphere. They're certified as Climate Beneficial by Fibershed- the gold standard nonprofit supporting the growth of regional fiber systems. Their mission is to enhance biodiversity by providing habitats for pollinators, birds and other species, improve the water-holding capacity of soil, and restore healthy ecosystems. The yarn is farmed, spun and knit regionally in NY. All of the yarns used on this project are undyed, the fibers are minimally processed, without chemical whiteners. The color of the sweater will change slightly each year because it is the same color that came right off the sheep's back. Part of the beauty of the garment is this evolution of color.
