FASHION often seems some unlikely collaborations but when I heard Lipsy was teaming up with Mary Katrantzou, my first thought was 'joke' and my second thought was 'disaster'. London-based Mary Katrantzou is, after all, the Queen of Prints. Despite being just 39, she was anointed

International Designer of the Year by Vogue, and her work has been exhibited at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and London's V&A. Her designs go for up to £8,000 and customers include Keira Knightley.

NEW LABEL YOU'LL LOVE

Rani & Co

RAMONA GOHIL is on a mission with her precious Rani & Co range: she believes jewellery can act as 'armour', and wants to encourage women to feel more powerful than they already are. Ramona, 30, who has a business degree, launched her company in 2017, only quitting her full-time job in social media last year. The brand's name Rani, meaning 'queen' in Hindi, is a nod to Ramona's Indian heritage. It is also
