NEW PRODUCTS

New Products

Stainless Steel Soaker & Smoker Box

Part No. OMV5754

Stainless Steel Soaker & Smoker Box
with hinged lid.

220 x 95 x 45mm H

The perforated wood chip smoker box produces smoke quickly.

Liquid reservoir helps keep meats moist over long cooks, while infusing them with flavour.

Suitable for hooded gas, electric and charcoal BBQs

Mystical Fire Pack

Part No. MYSTIC
25g sachet

Display Box of 50

It's very simple to use Mystical Fire.

Simply, toss 1-3 packs into any wood burning fire. Then sit back and enjoy the new vibrant colours that Mystical Fire will produce.
For best results, use 3 packs at once. Add more packs as you notice the colourful flames disappearing. 3 packs should last about 30+ minutes, dependent on fire conditions.

Ideal for Campfires and Firepits

Made In USA

Below is a table of Flavour styles from the 450g bags of BBQers Delight Smoking Pellets

Variety	Aroma	Best For
Hickory	Bacon-flavor, most commonly used and recognized smoke	Beef, pork, poultry, fish, game
Mesquite	Strong Spicy, very distinctive smoke of Southwest cooking	Beef, pork, poultry, fish, game
Savory Herb	Strong Zesty and robust flavors of Italian herbs	Lamb, pork, poultry
Apple	Strong Sweet, fruity smoke. Strongest of the fruit woods	Beef, pork, ham, poultry, game
Sugar Maple	Mild Very mild, a sweet light smoke	Pork, ham, poultry, cheese, game
Jack Daniels	Strong, Sweet smoke with aromatic tang, good on red meats	Beef, pork, poultry, game

How To Make A Foil Pouch!

1. Fold a 15cm x 30cm strip of heavy duty aluminium foil in half to make a 15cm square
2. With folded edge at the bottom, seal each side by folding the foil over twice to make a pouch
3. Partially fill pouch with 1/3 cup of pellets, leaving some space at the top, and double-fold opening to completely seal the pouch
4. With a toothpick, punch a tiny hole in ONE side only of the pouch.
5. Place the smoking pouch on or above the cooker's heat source with the punched side UP.

Smoking Pellet Tips & Tricks for all our Smoking Pellets

Pellets smoke when they are starved for oxygen. That's why they should be placed in a foil pouch or other fire proof container that limits air supply.

When making a foil smoking pouch, punch a hole in only one side if the pouch. A toothpick-size hole is large enough.

If you have only regular household foil available, simply make the pouch from a double thickness of foil

For evenly flavoured smoking of all the food you are cooking, place the smoker box or foil pouch to one side of the fire or heat source, not directly under the food.

If your BBQ is equipped with a smoker box, you can restrict air supply to the tray of pellets by placing a sheet of foil over it.

For easy cleaning after cooking, try placing a foil pouch of pellets inside the smoker box.

Remember- Bulk 9kg bags do not have the same variety of woods and are mainly used for the burn rather than flavour. If using bulk bags, it is recommended to mix with a 450g flavoured bag to enhance the aromas.

SMOKING CHUNKS 3KG BAG

Chunks. Chunks burn more slowly than chips, and often a chunk or two about the size of an egg is all that is needed for a lot of food. Because they are a slow, steady sources of smoke, they are in many ways, the most desirable. When you use chunks, you can add one or two at the start of the cooking cycle and you don't need to keep opening the unit and mess with the equilibrium in the cooking chamber's atmosphere.
Chips. Chips burn quickly and you may find that you need to add them more than once during the cooking cycle. Chips are ideal for shorter cooking times, but for longer cooking, chunks are better.
